They Bring You The War News From Korea—

Peter Kallscher

Jack James

Richard Ferguson

The three Scripps-Howard newspapermen above have seen plenty of action in their jobs of gathering the news and pictures that you get from the Korean battleground. United Press correspondent Peter Kallscher, left, returned safely after two days behind Red lines with a group of American soldiers of the "almost lost" battalion on the Suwon front. Communist claims of capturing Kallscher and another newsman proved false. UP correspondent Jack James, center, and Acme Newspictures photographer Richard Ferguson, right, narrowly escaped capture. They took a nap at a command post, were awakened by shell blasts and found themselves alone. The staff had fled. So did James and Ferguson — but quick. Earlier, James was wounded slightly in the foot by a strafing Red plane.

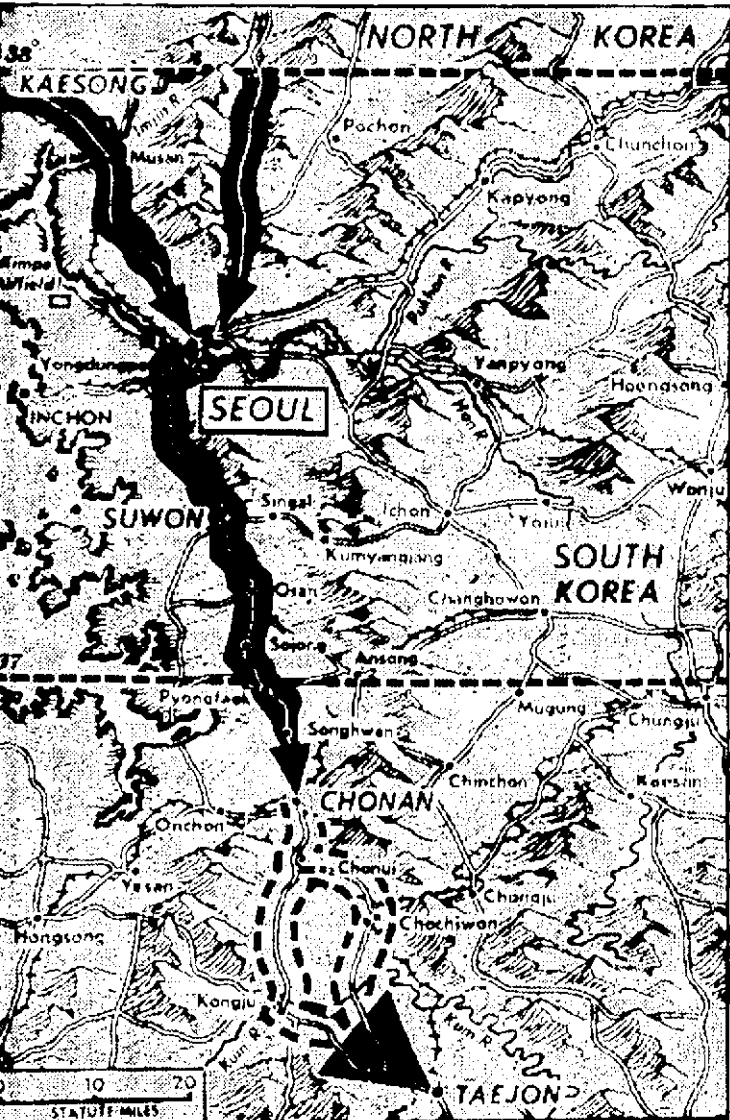

Russian-Built Tanks Against American-Built Bazookas

Spearhead of the North Korean slash into South Korea has been Russian-built tanks similar to that pictured — big, flat-topped vehicles, seven feet between tractor treads, bearing a 75-mm gun. Favorite anti-tank weapon of the American infantry now in action is the bazooka. A World War II "secret weapon," it was unveiled to the public in 1943. It was first used in combat in North Africa against German armor. The bazooka "gun" is a 50-inch, 14-pound steel tube, fitted with shoulder rest, pistol grip and trigger for the right hand. It fires a rocket-propelled, two-foot-long, armor-piercing grenade.

How Reds Pushed Toward Taejon

Solid line shows route of the North Korean Communist forces from start of their two-week-old drive at 38th parallel southward through Seoul, Suwon and into Chonan. Dotted line shows two main road routes in their next expected objective — Taejon. Reds have penetrated approximately 1100 miles by road into South Korea. Taejon is about 45 miles southeast of Chonan. When It's Daytime You Pray For Night

Last American Out of Suwon Says Yak Pilots Prefer Human Targets

By Richard H. Ferguson
NEA Staff Correspondent

AT THE KOREAN FRONT — When it's daytime you pray for night; when it's night time, you pray for rain tomorrow.

That expresses the feelings of American GIs and South Koreans chasing the scrambling humans while very often leaving trucks and jeeps sitting abandoned but unmolested on the highway.

The Russian-built fighters come screaming over the low hills with machine guns spitting and you dive for the nearest cover. The North Korean pilots have a strange and almost bloodthirsty preference for strafing people instead of vehicles.

They waste their ammunition chasing the scrambling humans while very often leaving trucks and jeeps sitting abandoned but unmolested on the highway.

Perhaps I owe my freedom to that peculiarity of the invader: pilots, because time after time during a hazardous flight from Suwon we kissed our jeep good-bye as we dove for cover. Every time, the Yak "stitched" up the area where we were huddled but left our jeep unharmed.

They did the same thing when they attacked the pitiful refugee columns, lacing civilian men, women and children with 50-caliber bullets, but neglecting to jam the highway with wrecked or burning vehicles.

I believe I was the last American to leave the evacuated Korean army headquarters at Suwon. The Koreans pulled out suddenly leaving an American army adviser, his Korean interpreter, another reporter and me.

We scooted through the town, stopping only to peer around corners before we turned them lest we run into a Northern tank or column of troops. All the shops were locked and boarded up and civilians were under cover.

Once out in the country we made good time until we ran into disorderly processions of South Korean troops, intermingled with refugees.

Richard Ferguson: Good weather brings out the Yaks.

We gunned the jeep across bridges while holding our breath, because every bridge had bundles of dynamite strapped to its up-rights. There were no military guards, presumably because nobody cared to guard a bridge which might erupt if strafed.

Several towns were aflame and the cramped, thatched cottages blazed fiercely. However, it was a choice of ducking our heads and running the gauntlet of flame or be overtaken by the enemy. We chose getting singed.

Several times we hit the dirt as the Yaks dove for us. We sprinted for safety through rice paddies aromatic with night soil and flattened ourselves against the mud walls.

Sometimes we had to weave precariously through convoys of Korean troops driving everything from jeeps to heavy road scrapers and caterpillar tractors. These troop concentrations were an invitation to strafers and we didn't breathe easily until we got clear of them.

Everyone in our jeep had an area of sky assigned as his responsibility. I dangled my foot over the back and watched for

Yaks coming down from the rear.

The rolling hills were perfect cover for these sneak attacks and once a Yak came over a hilltop behind us so fast we had to leap before we could get the jeep to stop rolling. We listened with leaden hearts to the jeep roll over the embankment and splash into the ditch beyond us.

We spent the next hour straining with the aid of every Korean we could recruit to get the jeep back on the road. By nightfall we had reached American positions and bunked in a school house where a command post had been established.

We felt safer and more at home even though we were awakened by alerts several times during the night and I wound up finishing my sleep in a foxhole. It was easier to sleep in the ground than to dash out every time the warning whistle whistled.

Everything Will Thornberg Ate Disagreed With Him Until He Took Hadacol

Found his trouble was due to lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin in his system!

In case after case where people had given up all hope of obtaining relief from such stomach distress, simply wonderful experiences are being reported after taking this great new HADACOL for deficiencies of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin in the system.

Everyone is talking about HADACOL and the wonderful food it is doing for weak, run-down men, women and children who have such deficiencies.

For instance, here's an interesting experience which Mr. and Mrs. Will Thornberg* jointly write about. They live in Garner, North Carolina.

"My husband, 60 years old, had suffered with stomach distress for quite some time. Everything he ate seemed to disagree with him. A friend told me about HADACOL and how much it had helped her. I insisted that my husband give it a fair trial. He had tried so many medicines without any result that he had begun to think nothing would help him.

"He is on his fourth bottle now. He can eat anything he wants, and it doesn't hurt him. He says he can recommend HADACOL gladly to anyone suffering as he did. Thanks so much for HADACOL."

Many Doctors Recommend HADACOL

Ask your own doctor if this isn't so. A lack of only a small amount of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin can cause much stomach distress—indigestion, heartburn, gas, bloating, a "nervous" stomach which can't, and refuses to, digest your food properly.

And thanks to HADACOL—it's now possible to do so. Get That Wonderful HADACOL Feeling HADACOL not only supplies deficient systems with more than their daily needs of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin but also beneficial amounts of precious Calcium, Phosphorus and Manganese—so vital to maintain good health.

And the best news, yet! Continued use of this great HADACOL helps great stomach disturbances from coming back! Truly one of the greatest blessings of the times! Forecasts of 30 Days 80 Per Cent Accurate

Summaries By Long Range In General Terms

By Robert E. Geiger

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—The weatherman is forecasting weather 30 days in advance now, and fairly close to the bull's eye. The daily weather forecast that your newspaper carries usually is for 24 or 36 hours. Weather Bureau officials say tests have shown these forecasts to be accurate about 87 times out of 100. The Associated Press reviewed the first six of the 30-day written forecasts started in February. Fifty-seven statements were made by the weatherman. About 45 seemed reasonably accurate when the forecast was compared with what actually occurred. This would be about 80 times out of 100.

The Weather Bureau itself uses maps and more technical methods for comparisons and it doesn't give this new service that high a rating. It hasn't made its score public. But the word "experimental" has been eliminated from the written forecast sheet, and this is sent to press services. The Weather Bureau is confident these prognostications are sufficiently accurate to be of value. The service—a map and a forecast—is sold to subscribers for $4.80 a year. It is sold to business people mostly. Only the forecasts are made available to press services.

The 30-day forecasts differ from the daily forecasts in several important ways. Weathermen don't even call them forecasts, but 30-day outlook summaries.

The long-range summaries use only general terms. However, the accompanying maps sharply define the areas to which the weatherman is referring.

Covers All Regions

The summaries don't forecast individual storms. They aren't for a particular place, like a community, but for the whole nation, or large regions.

They are based on the atmospheric pattern over a large portion of the earth, at from two to six miles high. They predict what effect this slow-moving pattern will have up to 30 days later on earth—or that part of it called the U.S.

In mid-February the summary said temperatures up to mid-March probably would be below normal over most of the east, except northern New England and Florida, where temperatures would be slightly warmer than normal. It said temperatures in the west would be slightly above normal. Elsewhere normal temperatures were expected.

"It will feel quite wintry to the residents of the east, who have been enjoying temperatures averaging about 10 degrees above normal during the past two months," the summary said.

This came close to hitting conditions on the button—and long enough ahead to give such people as eastern coal dealers and overcoat merchants the opportunity to time their advertising. Also for farmers to be prepared.

A young weather scientist, Jerome Namias, chief of the extended forecast section, makes the 30 day forecasts.

In Upper Atmosphere

Fifteen years ago, when he was at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Namias started studying the upper atmosphere, two to six miles above earth.

That was during the drought that occurred in the Great Plains—the dust bowl era.

Seeking information on the causes of the drought, or the possibilities of predicting such abnormal weather, Namias found the atmosphere more stable at high altitudes than nearer to earth.

He found slow-motion movements, compared with fast atmospheric action closer to earth. These movements seemed to have patterns. And the patterns seemed connected with weather weeks later on the earth's surface.

The work was begun here in

The presentation is a special feature of the third annual "Jr. Personality Parade," sponsored by Mrs. Human's Art Shop.

1941 and was the basis for five-day forecasts the bureau began making. The next year some experimental 30-day outlook maps were started. It is from these the present outlook service has grown.

In February of this year the bureau began issuing experimental 30-day outlook summaries with the map. The "experimental" label was dropped from the outlook a few weeks ago, although not from the map.

The weathermen have learned that "weather" at high levels usually moves in channels. In winter cold air may move down from the Arctic to the United States in a channel almost as well defined as an air pipe.

Imagine a network of these pipes, a few miles above earth, like a spider web. Imagine a giant

Plant Now to Save The Farm

WASHINGTON — (AP)—"Catch crops" are serving a double purpose this year, says the Department of Agriculture.

For many whose wheat acreage had to be abandoned because of drought, a planting of sudan or sorghum can be a catch crop to salvage something after crop failure.

Even more important, according to appeals by the department, is the planting of such catch crops to catch and hold the soil against the destructive action of wind erosion.

moves an open end of a pipe to the North Pole. The other end he aims directly at Cheyenne, Wyo., or Chicago. He blows Arctic air through the pipe. This could bring the whole Rocky Mountain region, or the Great Lake states, a spring blizzard, lasting perhaps a week.

Numbers Game With a Car

SILVIS, Ill. — (AP) — Albert Wannepain reported to police his car had been stolen from the place where he parked it on Tenth street. The next day he advised police he had recovered the auto. It was tight where he left it—on Ninth street.

Living Costs Are Starting Upon an Upward Spurt

Merchants and purchasing agents for mills and factories have done no state buying for several purposes since the Korean war. It is now the duty of the government to buy the necessities of life. The day when certain essentials and luxuries might become wartime necessities has also been postponed — this and cars for example, and even sugar.

Step Up Stockpiling

The government is going to increase its buying for the stockpile — for a reason with which no one can quarrel. The military board is going to increase its stockpiling of copper, tin, and other materials. One of the reasons for this is the fact that the government is going to increase its buying for the stockpile.

Merchants are buying agencies in New York, and they are not. They have increased their orders for piece goods and meat and are buying one-fifth to one-third of the total. They are buying one-fifth to one-third of the total.

• The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Turned Down
Diplomatic Plan to Halt Switchmen's Strike

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Only a few insiders realized it but, at his last press conference, President Truman blithely tossed out the window a carefully nurtured plan for halting a nation-wide rail strike.

Behind the scenes, Utah's scholarly Elbert Thomas, Senate Labor committee chairman, together with Wayne Morse, who settled the 1941 nation-wide rail strike just before Pearl Harbor, had pleaded with Mr. Truman to follow a path they had smoothed out—namely, an appeal to the patriotism of the switchmen to go back to work. Instead, the President went along with the suggestion of Harry Darby, the freshman Republican Senator from Kansas. Unsmiling, he curtly announced that the striking switchmen should get back on the job, or the government would take drastic action.

Senators Thomas and Morse, one a Democrat, the other a Republican, had urged Mr. Truman to handle the switchmen's strike and the threatened trainmen and conductors' strike set for July 15 all as one problem.

"The brotherhoods don't want to strike," Senator Thomas told the President. "The railroads have the union in exactly the same position the mine operators had John Lewis the last time. An appeal from you would keep the trains moving."

Senator Morse, in a separate talk with Truman, said virtually the same thing. Both Senators had received private assurances from brotherhood representatives in advance that such an appeal would do the trick, and there would be no strike. What they wanted was not a threat from the White House but a presidential message which they could relay to their members and use as an excuse for "no strike."

Rock Island Intervenes

To both Thomas and Morse, the President said, "talk to John"—referring to John Steelman, White House assistant on labor matters. Steelman, in turn, suggested that a lesser figure than the President make the appeal to the rail unions. He did not believe the President should have to intervene personally in every strike.

Before the matter was finally settled, however, hale and hearty Harry Darby, one of the most popular men on Capitol Hill, called at the White House, bluntly told the President that the switchmen's strike had held up the movement of Midwest grain.

"Why don't you tell them to go back to work, or you'll step in, and no nonsense?" advised Senator Darby, who is a director of the struck Rock Island railroad.

Mr. Truman agreed this was the thing to do and at his press conference that was what he said.

NOTE—Ironically, the switchmen's strike was called off against four of the five western railroads, but not against the Rock Island, of which Senator Darby is a director. The union announced it would continue the Rock Island strike as a test case, but President Truman then seized the railroad.

Keeping the Record Straight

UNFORGOTTEN STATEMENTS MADE LAST JANUARY WHICH SOME CONGRESSMEN WOULD LIKE TO FORGET:

REP. ROBERT CHIPFIELD, ILLINOIS REPUBLICAN—"In my judgment, to furnish (Korean) aid would be like treating a rascal on one's finger when the arm was swollen with poison from the wrist to the shoulder."

REP. DONALD JACKSON, CALIFORNIA REPUBLICAN—"South Korea is a Bataan without a Corregidor, a Dunkerque without a Flo-tilla, a dead-end street without an escape."

REP. JOHN M. VORYS, OHIO REPUBLICAN—"This (Korean aid) is strictly rat-hole money which we cannot afford."

REP. LAWRENCE SMITH, WISCONSIN REPUBLICAN—"Our taxpayers are entitled to some consideration. This (Korean aid) is absolutely 'operation rat-hole.' It will be said, of course, that this is demagoguery, make the most of it."

STATEMENT THAT CONGRESSMAN NIXON WOULD LIKE TO HAVE FORGOTTEN: One of the few who vigorously championed aid to Korea when the House first voted against it last January was Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas of California, sometimes charged by her opponent, GOP Congressman Nixon, of being too friendly with the Reds. Said Mrs. Douglas:

"We have a three-year program to help the southern half of Korea to be independent and self-supporting. If we abandon them we can be sure that in two or three months they will collapse which will mean that the Communist forces will take over, and all of Korea will then come under a Communist government—and Russian influence.

"This is the only foothold we have in north-eastern Asia. Is it worth the gamble or not? It seems to me very emphatically that it is."

GOP Congressman Nixon, on the other hand, voted against Korean aid, now claims Mrs. Douglas is pro-Red.

McCarthy's Reds

When Senator McCarthy last week hurled his usual barrage of vitriol at the State Department, claiming that Reds were in charge of its Korean policy, he overlooked one thing. The man in charge of the State Department's Korean desk happens to be a member of McCarthy's own party. Furthermore, his Republican antecedents are far more distinguished and more conservative than those of the Senator from Wisconsin. The Korean expert in question is Harry Frelinghuysen, son of the former Republican Senator from New Jersey, and one of the oldest families in that state.

Far from being a Communist, young Frelinghuysen still remains a member of the Republican party, though he believes in giving his best to his country whatever administration is in office. Serving in the U.S. Army in Korea as a lieutenant, he bucked brasshat inertia and the tendency of many American officers to take Korean service as a chance to live on the fat of the land and five servants and a four-hour work-day.

Back in Washington Frelinghuysen has been at the forefront of those who recognized the danger in Korea and pushed for more aid to Korea. Independently wealthy but believing that every American should serve his country, he has been working day and night shifts. Yet Senator McCarthy now brands him a "Red."

Statement of Principles Gives
Hope For Real GOP Program

By Bruce Blossat

Under the label, "Republican Advance" a little group of men meeting in Philadelphia shaped a party document notable for its honesty, clarity and lack of political bombast.

It deserves to be viewed as a major contribution to the long-overdue framing of a sound Republican philosophy of government, inclined to modern needs.

The statement of principles notes that in the domestic realm the chief challenges of our time are social. "They have given rise to certain goals that are deeply desired by the people and are in fact essential to the preservation of freedom in an industrial society."

These goals include old and security, adequate medical care, insurance against unemployment, improved housing, protection of labor's rights, aid to farmers, better education.

The Republican group observes, however, that during its 17-year tenure in the national government the Democratic Party has evolved but one approach to all these problems—the unlimited extension of government control of the people.

In other words, whenever faced with a prime social dilemma, the Democrats have almost automatically said, "Let Washington fix it."

It is no secret that the Republicans regard this philosophy as destructive of individual liberties. They have been saying so for a long time.

But as the Republican Advance points out, the GOP has been too slow to shape policies that are at once capable of safeguarding individual freedoms and answering the social needs of the times. In their glamorous insistence on saving the individual, they have seemed to ignore his basic wants.

The Advance believes there is solid footing for a progressive Republican Party on new ground some distance away from the old.

It cites as an example a GOP-sponsored health bill which would place the primary burden on voluntary efforts by the people themselves, with the government asked only to encourage and promote these mutual activities. It believes this plan opens a whole new vista for the solution of the nation's social problems without submerging the individual in an anonymous mass.

Four senators and 21 congressmen among the GOP have hailed the new manifesto as a powerful declaration of party beliefs. It would be more accurate to say the "beliefs of one wing of the party," for the silence of many GOP leaders suggests their disapproval or at least their apathy.

But if this statement is not to serve as a foundation stone in the building of a constructive Republican policy, then it would seem incumbent on the silent party generals to come forward with something equally forthright and hopeful. Nothing they have produced so far meets that test.

Russia Helps Keep U.S. Taxes Up

It's good news that the federal deficit for the fiscal year just ended was about 40 per cent below the level estimated by Administration experts.

The government's red ink entry this time came to $3,122,102,357. Last year's deficit was $3,111,000,000 smaller. But fiscal specialists had looked for a 1949-50 deficit of $5,400,000,000; a few gloomy prophets even spoke of $7,000,000,000.

The forecasters were off in their predictions because federal spending was more than $2,000,000,000 less than anticipated last January. It came to $40,167,000,000. Had federal revenues held up to the level of the previous year, the deficit would have been only slightly larger than in 1948-49. But there was a drop of $1,201,000,000 in tax collections.

Perhaps we should all be thankful things were not as bad as they were supposed to be. Yet it's hard to forget that this is the 18th federal deficit in the past 20 years. And it's hard to overlook the prospect that with the Korean war going, we will probably spend far more in the new fiscal year than anyone would have expected.

We might as well face it: so long as Russia exists as a threat to the free nations, there will be no great financial happiness either for the U. S. taxpayer or for the government he supports.

• So They Say

The cold war is a good war. It is the only war in history where the question of destruction doesn't enter into it at all. . . . We have rebuilt Europe, not destroyed it.

—ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman.

—O—

I am still of the opinion we can prevent war.

—Army Chief of Staff J. Lawton Collins.

—O—

The nation must be strong enough to make it clear that any attempts of Russia further to expand will jeopardize the peace.

DISCIPLINED TO THE KINGDOM

We have a tough, but manly, motto for freedom. He is, but freedom can come only through discipline. I am free from the policeman if I obey the laws he represents—within the framework of the laws he represents. I am free, the harder the rule, I obey, the larger the freedom. I enjoy, if I obey the laws of the United States, I am free within the boundaries of that country. When I am disciplined to the Kingdom of God and obey its laws, I am free within the limits of His realm. But its realm is universal; therefore I am universally free. The Christian, disciplined to the Kingdom of God, is the only universal person universally free. He is a cosmic person.

The thing works the other way. If you are disciplined to yourself and your own desires, then you are free within the area of yourself and your desires. You have chosen a small unit of allegiance, hence you become small. Moreover, you become disliked by others to whom you have no loyalty or love. In the end, you dislike yourself for being so small, and for being disliked by others. This is a vicious circle, a descending spiral. But if you are disciplined to the Kingdom, you will like yourself for the goodness and nobility of your loyalties and allegiances, and other people will respond to you, for you respond to them; and best of all the universe will take sides with you will back you, and will make you feel at home and free. This is an ascending spiral.

A woman who had been all tied up with fears, a physical and nervous wreck, writes after her release: "The sense of freedom and release, the new understanding, and the something that seems almost like finding a sixth sense is wonderful." That "sixth sense" is the cosmic sense, a sense of being universalized, of a cosmic al-oneness, of being in tune with the sum total of reality. Being disciplined to the totality. Order, in a total way, with every part moving toward a single goal, you become a narrow person with a narrow purpose. But at the very moment you are narrowed you are broadened into the purposes and the life of the Kingdom. You are totally free.

O God, I want every area of my life to own one allegiance, and one alone. For I cannot be an undisciplined person, or disciplined to too small an allegiance. I cannot rest till I am under the sway of the Ultimate, nor until the Ultimate has the ultimate away. In Jesus' name. Amen.

For some reason which I have never been able to determine, spots on the skin are frequently called "liver spots."

Q—I have a few brown spots around my chest and hands. Does this indicate something wrong with my liver?—Mrs. F. P.

A—There is no such thing as "liver spots." There are a number of different conditions of the skin which may produce a spotty and of appearance including chloasma and vitiligo. Without looking at them and perhaps taking scrapings, it is impossible to make a definite diagnosis.

Q—What causes a keyhole pupil?—Reader.

A—The technical name for this is coloboma. It is either a defect present at birth or the result of an injury or operation.

Q—The flesh above my knee cap moves more violently from time to time for about one-half second. What could the cause be?—N. T. N.

A—The most likely explanation is a muscular spasm. What produces this muscular spasm, however, is hard to say.

Q—Is it dangerous for a man of 70 to have an operation for hernia?—J. W.

A—The operation can be done under local anesthesia and should not be at all dangerous.

LITTLE DOC

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: John Sand, M.D., arrives in Wolf Point, Montana, to begin his job. But just after he steps from the train at 3 a.m., there's a shooting in the saloon. One man is killed and another wounded.

THE cowpuncher cut Dr. John Sand a hard look as he set down the heavy suitcase. Unmindful, the doctor carried the small black bag over to the bar and set it down. Water was dripping from his hat, and his brown eyes were taking in all that there was to see. Then his eyes met the cowpuncher's hard gray bloodshot eyes, and he motioned with his head at the man's left arm. One gray flannel shirt sleeve was soaking up the blood that came from a wounded upper arm.

"I'll take a look at that arm of yours," John Sand spoke in a quiet voice. "I'm a doctor."

A slow grin spread the cowpuncher's tight lips and his eyes squinted. The color had come back into his leathery face.

"Figgerin' on hangin' out your shingle here at Wolf Point?" His voice was surprisingly soft, almost a lazy drawl.

"I hope to make my living here," John Sand smiled and added: "Or starve to death."

"I don't know about how much you'll make for a living, Doc. But you sure won't starve. There's always plenty of beef."

The saloon man turned away from the body on the floor and shoved through the crowd. "He's dead, all right," he wheezed in a wheezy voice.

"I couldn't tell you that. Trot in behind the man and dig up a bottle that ain't poison, and a clean glass. Doc here needs something to take the chill off before he gets to work on me," said the cowpuncher, who added: "This is Dutch John, Doc. He's got a heart bigger'n his belly, so long as it don't cost him a dime." The big cowman laughed.

When John Sand set down his empty glass, the cowpuncher half-filled bottle in his hand. "Trot," he said, "carryin' the news. But he'll get them fancy duds of his all wet fer nothin'. The law's outa town."

He waited for John Sand to fill his shot glass from a bottle that Dutch took off the bar before the man next to him could reach for it.

"Tricks like that got Trot ruled off the racetracks. Here's welcome to Wolf Point, Doc."

When John Sand set down his empty glass, the cowpuncher handed him the bottle. He walked over to where the heavy suitcase lay and picked it up.

"Fetch the tool bag, Doc."

He went out through the half doors and John Sand followed him. He led the way down the plank sidewalk to a sod roofed log cabin that was set back about 50 yards from the main street. The cabin had been whitewashed but it was weathered off. He went in and lit a big Rochester metal-based lamp.

"This is called the Whitehouse, Doc. Swamp her out and get rid of this truck and I'll make you a good place to hang out your shingle. Till you get time to build something better, it's all yours. If anybody asks how come, you tell 'em one of the Johnson Boys gave it to you." The man grinned.

The cabin was littered with old boots, chaps, saddles and discarded clothing and empty and half-empty whisky bottles. The air had a peculiar stench of old tobacco smoke, leather and old clothes. A couple of tarp-covered roundup beds of old light and tied with bed ropes. Two were spread out on bunks. There was a littered card table and a few old barroom chairs, and a round belied stove. Doc lit the stove.

JOHN SAND filled the tea kettle on the stove and, while he waited for the water to boil, Doc took a roll of gauze and wiped the blood away from the bullet print.

He had the wound dressed and bandaged when there sounded a rapping on the door. The cowpuncher reached for the wooden handled six-shooter at his side as he got swiftly to his feet.

"Roll under that bunk, Doc." His voice lost its lazy drawl. It became a sharp bitten command.

John Sand crawled under the nearest bunk. He saw the big man, stripped to the waist, turn the lamp down on low wick. He moved quietly to the door and slid the heavy wooden bar back, then pulled the door quickly inward. He was hidden behind the door with the gun in his hand.

"Don't shoot, Dusty!" sounded a woman's voice. John Sand saw a small, slim woman in a rain-wet yellow saddle slicker come in.

Army Sergeant Accused Of 'Frisco Killing'

Unclad Woman Is Found Badly Beaten On Ocean Beach

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11—(AP)—A 37-year-old Army sergeant was arrested Monday on charge of murdering a San Francisco secretary, found dying from a beating on the ocean beach.

Homicide Inspector Ed Vandervort said the soldier, Sgt. Hugh E. Burns, of Newton, Mass., was arrested at Camp Stoneman that morning by Army agents at the request of San Francisco police.

Gave Police Statement
Vandervort said Burns gave police an oral statement acknowledging he had fought and struck the victim, Mrs. Myrna Stewart, 39, wife of a telephone company line-man.

Mrs. Stewart was found nude and in a dying condition Sunday on the beach near Flacker zoo. She never regained consciousness.

Police immediately began a search for an Army sergeant who, also unclad, had asked a passing couple to help him with Mrs. Stewart.

Vandervort and Inspector Al Neider said Burns whose wife and small child now live at Fort Smith, Ark., told police this story:

He met Mrs. Stewart in a bar about 6 p. m. Saturday evening. He was hazy about the details of what followed, but said he remembered they later got into a cab and the driver later ejected them because Burns insisted on beating his woman companion.

Suggested A Swim
They eventually went to the beach, when she suggested they take a swim and they both removed their clothing. Then she collapsed and he carried her down to the water's edge, hoping to revive her by dashing water on her.

Although police had expressed belief the woman had been beaten with a ginger ale bottle, Vandervort said Burns admitted only striking her with his fists. He said he could not remember what they quarreled about.

In Mrs. Stewart's apartment, Vandervort said, police found a small card advertising a tavern. At the tavern, a bartender remembered seeing Mrs. Stewart meet a soldier and leave with him. He also said she had recommended to the soldier a hotel at which he might stay. The trail then led to Burns through the hotel's registration, Vandervort said.

A Freight Line Is Fined $10,000

JEFFERSON CITY, July 11—(AP)—Southwest Freight Lines, Inc., of Kansas City was fined $10,000 and costs in Cole county circuit court Monday for violating state laws and Public Service Commission regulations.

The company agreed to pay the fine and all costs in the action. It was taken to circuit court because the PSC cannot fine the utilities it regulates.

All the commission can do is revoke or suspend the company's right to operate in Missouri.

Into School Fund
Under Missouri law, the $10,000 fine goes into the state public school fund.

In its suit the commission said Southwest had been frequently arrested for violating over-the-road weight limits, PSC operating regulations and state laws.

Last July 1 the commission put the freight trucking firm on probation for a year and ordered to

27 Indicted By K. C. Grand Jury

KANSAS CITY, July 11—(AP)—Six indictments naming 27 persons were returned Monday by county grand jury to Circuit Judge Ray G. Cowan.

The 27 names were kept secret on the recommendation of the jury foreman, Sam Lawler, but it was believed many of the persons named were active in gambling rackets here.

Judge Cowan said capias warrants would be issued immediately for the arrest of those indicted.

Gizmo Before Jury
The last witness heard by the jury before the indictments was Anthony R. (Tony) Gizmo, former convict and associate of the late Charles Brannan, slain political figure.

The jury foreman, in presenting the indictments to the court, said "these are not routine indictments but are in line with the court's charge to this jury."

Judge Cowan had charged the jury to investigate various rackets here.

Judge Cowan approved a jury recess after the indictments were returned, subject to call by the foreman.

watch its operations closely. "We wish again to warn this carrier that if any more substantial violations occur, this commission will not hesitate upon such showing to suspend or revoke its authority" to operate over Missouri highways, the PSC said.

The commission found that Southwest did not provide adequate service to the communities in its operating area, frequently tried to slip overweight loads around weighing stations and tried to use special one-way permits over and over again.

Slight Smoke Damage At Baptist Church

Burning dry grass in a furnace—jacked smoke—Monday afternoon at the First Baptist church and slight smoke damage resulted. The alarm was received about 5:30 o'clock and when fire companies arrived on the scene, smoke was pouring out basement windows.

Two furnaces which are fired by a stoker and set fire. There being no draft, the smoldering grass sent out clouds of smoke through the stoker and furnace door. After a little work the firemen relieved the situation.

Shortly before 6:00 o'clock the fire alarm at the Missouri Pacific shops went off at the paint shop. The fire whistle was blown and the shop fire department members began racing to the shop grounds.

An investigation revealed the alarm was set off when water pressure went up on the water mains due to the call to the Baptist church. Nothing more than excitement resulted at the shop grounds.

The damages to the car driven by Light were estimated at $300.

Sedalia Scouts Home After A Wonderful Time in Camp

Five Sedalia Boy Scouts, James Phelps, Crosby Brown, John Loague, Richard Stohr and "Bob" Morgan and Scoutmaster Harry Lambirth, arrived home about 5:30 o'clock Sunday night from the Boy Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge and according to young Phelps they had a grand time, saw many wonderful things but it is good to be home again.

James Phelps, son of Mrs. Dora Phelps, 6115 Wilkerson street, is a member of Scout Troop 52, of the First Baptist church, of which Charles Hofmeier is scoutmaster. His trip was made possible by the Brotherhood of the First Baptist church and he won it through attendance and advancement in Scout work.

Things went pretty smooth, James said, "with good train accommodations all the way and the thrill of eating on the diner of the train. Only once were they a bit uncomfortable, he said, and that was when something went wrong with the air conditioning and it was pretty hot. The one other thing that went wrong on the entire trip was a flat tire on the bus when they were returning to Valley Forge from Mount Vernon. But those things mattered so little to Phelps that he wouldn't have mentioned them if he hadn't been asked if there were any unpleasant experiences on the trip. After all the men at Valley Forge didn't even know what buses, trains and air conditioning was — so why should a little something going wrong with modern conveniences bother a group of Boy Scouts.

Visit Historic Memorials
The one thing that impressed Boy Scout Phelps most of all was the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D. C. Among other things he told of was the Jefferson Memorial, the capitol and a section in Washington, D. C., that without electric light and telephone poles would be exactly like it was originally with cobblestone streets and old type houses.

They visited Philadelphia, too, said Phelps, where they walked around seeing historic sights such as Betsy Ross' house, Independence hall, the Liberty Bell and Carpenters' hall.

As they crossed the Hudson river on a ferry to New York City Phelps told of seeing the real Statue of Liberty, a replica of which the Boy Scouts so proudly dedicated on July 4th on the court house lawn here. They saw Rockefeller Center, the Empire State building and many other things to remember in New York. It was a real thrill staying at Valley Forge where still are the mounds of dirt made by the soldiers who lived there during the Revolutionary war, James said, and another unforgettable thing to him was the Holland tunnel between New York and New Jersey, through which they went on a bus.

Phelps was wearing a white sweatshirt on which was printed Camp Alpine in blue letters. That was where they stayed overnight just before starting for home, Phelps said, and that is the place to which he hopes to return next summer and for which he has already started saving money. "It was a real camp," he said smilingly, "and I'd like to go back again."

Administrator Appointed
Letters of administration in the estate of Mrs. Nannie M. May, who died in Sedalia on June 28 have been issued in Pettis county probate court today to her son, Walter T. May of Houstonia.

Heirs of the estate are Walter T. May, son; Melvin May, son of Smithton; Ernest May, son of Smithton; and Mrs. Marguerite Loveland, daughter of 410 South

William F. Brown is the attorney for the estate.

Ralph J. Green, Head of MPSC, Was Honored

of Osborne, Kas. he bought a small flour mill. Power from the mill generator first was used to light up parts of the town. Then Mr. Green conceived the idea of building transmission lines to convey electricity from a central station to a group of surrounding towns.

The two sons, Ralph and Lawrence, soon were old enough to be of real help and they set poles, strung wires and erected transformer stations. In Kansas blizzards they patrolled the lines, worked with increasing diligence to give the public this new thing that people talked about—public service. They developed a system of 25 to 30 towns around Concordia, Kas.

Sell in Kansas
Then a New York firm offered the Greens a good price and they sold their utility plant and lines. They were able to pay off their debts and have enough cash capital to reinvest in a larger way in the electric utility field.

The family saw the opportunities in western Missouri, so located at Pleasant Hill, and once again set out on connecting towns with electricity. Their method of service and fair dealing under the names of L. K. Green and Sons, Green Light and Power Company, West Missouri Power Company, soon had them serving 80 towns.

The power plant at Clinton was built, and the water powered generator on the Osage at Osceola was another unit of Green construction.

A New York financier and promoter purchased the company from the Greens in 1927, with the exception of the smaller West Missouri Power Company holdings.

Some years later the SEC ordered the picture, and Ralph Green, wanting to reenter the field, made an offer for the substantial part of stock held by Middle West Utilities. It was accepted and he took over as president July 10, 1949.

Extend Services
One of his older employees said: "Mr. Green immediately began reducing rates and extending service to the public, including many farms. He personally visited new and old customers and made it a practice to visit the men working on the lines and in the plants. He grew up out on the job and that's what he likes today."

Missouri Public Service now is serving 100 towns. Headquarters is in Warrensburg. Headquartered is president of Missouri Gas and Electric, another utility which has 40 towns, and has headquarters at Lexington.

Mr. Green has two sons associated with him, Aris L. Green, who is executive vice-president of the company, and Richard C. Green, a senior at the University of Missouri, who will join the company full time this fall. Both make their home in Warrensburg.

Mr. Green also has a daughter, Mrs. William C. Tucker, of west of Warrensburg, and two sisters, Mrs. Frank Thomas, Kansas City, and Mrs. John Diebel, Concordia, Kas., and the brother, Lawrence Green, San Diego, Calif.

Bloomington Ill. To Be Host CBIC Convention

The Third Annual Veterans Meeting On August 4, 5, 6th

The Third Annual National Reunion of the China-Burma-India Veterans Association will be August 4, 5, and 6, in Bloomington, Illinois. William F. Brown, national historian of the association and prosecuting attorney for Pettis county, Missouri said today. Headquarters for the reunion will be the Rogers hotel. About 1,000 veterans of the CBI theater, serving in World War II are expected to attend.

Ellsworth Green Commander
At the opening morning session of the reunion, Ellsworth Green, Jr., of Kansas City, Kansas, National Commander, will give his official report of the association's activities for the last year. Speakers during the three day convention will include Major General Lewis A. Pick, chief of engineers, department of the Army, Washington D. C.; U. Ahmad Ansari, press attache of the embassy of Pakistan, former editor of the "Star of India"; Hsueh Chung Tang, acting consul general of the Republic of China; and Ralph Graham, assistant director of the Chicago zoological park.

Many of the CBI veterans will attend the gathering wearing colorful costumes, carrying snake charmers, musical instruments, prayer wheels, and other things which they carried while they were on duty in the Orient.

In addition to a "Fun Session" on Friday night and a "Commander's Banquet" and dance Saturday night, the program will include affairs of a more serious nature when the CBI vets conduct a Memorial Service on Sunday afternoon for those of their buddies who did not return from the Orient.

NEW YORK, (AP)—The guy who wears a badge that looks like the other side of a buffalo nickel is going overseas again—ready to fight for America. He's done it before, he's ready now, and he'll do it anytime he's called on.

Who is he? He's the guy with the Indian head patch on his shoulder—the GI Joes who have worn this emblem of the second infantry division proudly and with great combat success in two wars.

It's a famous division. Everyone in the army knows it—and knows its record. It has been alerted at its Fort Lewis, Wash., base to get ready to go to the Far East.

And this news today must send a thrill of warm memory through tens of thousands of Americans of two generations. Some who served with the Second Infantry at the Argonne in 1918 had sons who went with it from the hedgerows of Normandy to the river Elbe between 1944 and 1945.

The wearers of the Indian head patch are an emergency outfit. Like their shoulder-to-shoulder comrades in Europe, the equally famous "Fighting First" infantry division, they are an old-line regular army outfit. On their performance depends the professional reputation of the professional American army.

They are used to delivering in emergencies. They have a pride of arms, a tradition of performance in battle, a morale in being that measure out military strength as a nation.

If it is true that they may be sent to the Pacific area as occupation troops in Japan to replace the 24th Infantry Division units summoned already to Korea. That could be temporary or permanent, as the needs of the situation develop. But I am sure that General MacArthur will be less lonely to have them under his command for the tradition that this unit has is what top commanders like to rely on—when the cards are down, the die is cast.

Leads Arms Aid Group

Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine

Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine, above, former commander of the First Marine Division, heads the military team on a special U. S. survey group en route to East Asia to determine priorities for arms aid to Indo-China, the Philippines, Indonesia, Malaya, Burma and Thailand. The group, charged with "accelerating" military aid to the Red-manned countries, is made up of representatives of the state and defense departments and Economic Co-operation Administration.

They want to have under them a division that has proved its self before in battle. Wouldn't you?

If you were going to boss a big fight?

Only 82 of the present 15,000 men in the division marched with it through France and Germany. But they are a hard sold core of trained men to pass on to the youngsters the second division's tradition of standing firm in time of trouble.

If they do make the test again, I can imagine a veteran sergeant's shoulder helping protect Liege.

telling a boy swept by his first year of death.
"You think it's tough now, kid? Just think about five years and eight months ago we were parked near the German-Belgian border. We looked out on a snowy December day and damned if it didn't seem like they were throwing the whole Nazi army against us. "We were on the northern shoulder helping protect Liege. Our big supply dump. And if for 72 straight hours, day and night, they'd got through us the war would have gone on some longer. They hit us with every damned thing they could think of—tanks, and artillery and infantry and even spies wearing our uniforms and riding in captured American jeeps. You couldn't even tell a buddy from an enemy—for sure. "But we held them. They ain't supposed to get through. It went on
